From Wednesday, April 11. to Saturday, April 14. 1711.

WE have not talk'd with the Examiner a pretty while, Maſter; I think he deſerves to be taken down a ... he runs a-head at a ſtrange rate. I can ... him to nothing better than to my Hogs, ... they once ſet a running, 'tis in vain to ... ſtopping them; for they'l go on thro a ... Hedg, or any thing, tho they ſhould be ... ang by the way; and then they make a ...eadful noiſe as if ſomebody had injur'd ... it be wholly owing to their own head- ...emper; for they might pull out their ... they would, and go where they pleas'd ... moleſtation, if they kept out of the Corn ... Incloſures.

... think your Compariſon is pretty apt, ... ſomething too ſhort; for the Examiner ...action ſeem rather to be like the Gada- ...ine than yours, they are poſſeſs'd with ...edleſs Fury, that inſtead of running thro ... Hedges into the Corn-fields and Inclo- ...ey run down ſteep Places into the Sea, ... Devil brought his Hogs to a fair Mar- ... have left them. However, Roger, ſince ...nder ſome Concern for the Examiner and ...ds, I'll give you my advice how to help ...ttle.

...m. Pray do, Maſter; for I don't love ...or Creatures run headlong to deſtruction, ...prevent it.

... perceive you are acquainted with Sir W. ... Majeſty's principal Oculiſt, who cures ...hat are born blind, and has reſtor'd I ...ow how many hundreds of Seamen and ... their ſight, ſo that now they can ſee how ... Ropes, and manage the Rudder and o- ...kling of the Ships, ſo as to prevent their ..., and running foul upon Rocks and ...

...m. Well, and what of all that, Maſter? ...Why you muſt ſpeak to Sir William, Ro- ...tell him that he ought to ſend the Exa- ...is Brother Abel, and Dr. Sacheverel, the ...ind Leaders of the Blind, a Caſt of his ... and that ſince he can cure thoſe who are ...nd, 'twill be much eaſier for him to help ...o have only artificial Miſts, Pins, and ...s caſt before their eyes: but becauſe I ...ave you give Sir William as little trouble ...ble, and that he mayn't lay out more ...pon Medicines than is needful, or fatigue ...-horſes too much by running about Town, ... him that Abel has ſummon'd all the blind ...s to meet at Stationers-Hall againſt the ..., to hear a Conſort of Muſick. There- ...oo'd adviſe Sir William to be there; for I fancy the dark Squadrons and Battalions muſt be ſo much charm'd with the High-Church Muſick, that they will ſit as ſtill as Lambs, till Sir William couches their Cataracts, removes their Gutta Serena's, with the Pins, Miſts, and Webs that obſtruct their Sight: And becauſe the Spirituals ought to be prefer'd to the Temporals, I wou'd have him begin with Dr. Sacheverel his Brother Oculiſt, and convince him by experience of the difference betwixt a real and palliating Cure; for I fancy the Doctor has ſtrain'd his Eye-ſtrings a little, by ſtaring too much upon the Bags that belong to the East-India Company and Bank of England; and that the Apple of his Eye may have receiv'd ſome damage by ſeeing the Union-Croſs upon the Standards of the Artillery-Company, inſtead of that of the Chevalier de St. George.

Countrym. I like your Advice hugely, Maſter: Pray go on with your Meſſage, for I'll very honeſtly deliver it to Sir William.

Obſ. Then pray, Roger, deſire Sir William to take a narrow Inſpection into the Eyes of Abel's Genuine Sons of the Church, when they meet on the 23d inſtant, to ſee if there be any of them who ſquint towards St. Germains or the Chevalier de St. George, on pretence of keeping St. George's Day. Deſire him likewiſe, if our Friend the Examiner be there, to take a particular care of his Eyes, and ſcrape off the Scales which hinder the poor Man from reading Hiſtorys, Statute-Books, Convocation-Books, Articles, and Canons of the Church, Addreſſes of both Houſes of Parliament, her Majeſty's Anſwers and Proclamations; for he runs ſo much a-head like a blind high-mettled Horſe, that I am afraid he may fall and break his Knees at leaſt, if not his Neck, and endanger his Riders.

Countrym. Riders, Maſter! Why do you talk ſo? Do you think there's any more than one concern'd in that Libel?

Obſ. Yes I do, Roger, and for the ſame reaſon that an Oxford Terræ Filius gave on a certain Performance, viz. That it muſt be writ by a Club; for 'tis impoſſible that any one Man could be ſo dull. He ſtumbles ſo often upon falſe Hiſtory, falſe Politicks, falſe Divinity, and falſe Philoſophy, that he muſt certainly have blind Riders in all thoſe Faculties. His Falſhood in point of Hiſtory is ſo remarkable in his Paper of the 12th, and his Politicks and Divinity ſo very mean, that certainly every Man of Senſe who reads it, muſt bluſh for him. Therefore, Roger, I muſt give you one more Article for your Meſſage to Sir William Read: I underſtand he is ſo very dextrous at cutting off and curing of Wens, that he has lately cut a monſtrous one from a Gentleman's Neck, which made it ſtand awry; and tho the ableſt Surgeons of Eu- rope would not undertake it, Sir William has made a perfect Cure. Pray him therefore to look in the Examiner's Neck, and see if there be not a Wen there, which sets both his Eyes and his Understanding so much awry, that he could not read the Earl of Clarendon's Folio History, printed at Oxford, in a fair Character and good Paper, to set him a little to rights as to the Causes of the War betwixt King Charles I. and his Parliament, and who they were that brought that Prince to his Tryal, and murder'd him. Pray Sir William also to set the Examiner's Head in its due Posture, and remove the Pins and Webs out of his Eyes, that he may be able to read King Charles II's Breda Declaration, and his Speeches in Parliament upon his Restoration; wherein he owns, that had it not been for the Presbyterians, neither he nor the House of Lords had ever been restor'd: And if Sir William find there be any hopes of curing the Eyesight of the Examiner and the other Sacheverellites so far, as they may be able to discern Men from Trees, let them look upon the 12th of Car. II. cap. 30. and see whom the Murder of King Charles I. is there charg'd upon by a High Tory Parliament, and whether they fix it upon any one Denomination of Protestants, or upon a few Miscreants, as far from being true Protestants as being true Subjects. Let them also look into cap. 11. of that same year, call'd The Act of Oblivion, and then tell us whether they can be good and loyal Subjects who run counter to the Tenor of that Act, and trump up old Reproaches, to keep Discords alive among the Subjects. Let them also look upon the Histories of those times, and tell us, if they can, the name of any one Presbyterian concern'd in the King's Trial and Murder; and whether it does not appear from authentick Records, Protestations, Declarations, and Acts of Parliament, that the whole Kingdom and Church of Scotland, and all the Presbyterians in England and Ireland, did not expose themselves to the Fury of the Usurpers, by opposing the King's Tryal and Murder: and then let the World judg of the Honesty and Veracity of Mr. Examiner, and the other High-Church Libellers.

Countrym. You prescribe Sir William too much Work, Master: Who shall pay him his Fees, and for his Medicines?

Obs. Don't trouble your self about that, Roger: Sir William is a charitable Gentleman, he cures her Majesty's blind Seamen for nothing; but if he can cure the blind Sacheverellites, and cut off the Wens which set their Understandings awry, they can do no less than give him 500 l. Transfer in the Bank, and as much in the East-India Company, that he may attend them there upon all Occasions, and keep open their Eyes to see where the mony'd Interest lies, and whether it be Mony or Land that is most capable of supporting the War, and carrying on our Trade; and I hope he will give some purblind Whigs a Cast of his hand too, that they mayn't mistake their way, and run their Noses against Posts, by joining with the declar'd Enemies of our Constitution, and trusting their Cash with those who know how to make use of a Spunge.

Countrym. Enough of Work for Sir William at once, Master. Let you and I give our helping hand a little, for you know I am one of his Brother-Oculists. There's a huge thick Scale upon the Eyes of our Highfliers, which I must beg your help to remove; for they say they cannot see the Pretender's Illegitimacy, because it was never prov'd in Parliament, tho the Prince of Orange promis'd in his Declaration, that it should be enquir'd into, but durst never attempt it when he had a Parliament made up of Creatures.

Obs. That Scale was put upon their Eyes the late King James's Manifesto, Roger, and been continu'd there ever since by our Priests and their Abettors, who are against mitting a Cure, and for thickening the Scale their Jure Divino Birthright, and Unlimited sive-Obedience. However, Roger, I will them to a Prescription, that will certainly them if they'l make use of it.

1. Roger, the Prince promis'd no such his Declaration, but only refer'd the Enquiry Free Parliament, as may be seen by the Declaration it self; yet K. James was so far from ting to, or offering such an Enquiry, that not trust the Matter to a Parliament, but the Writs he had issu'd for summoning one broke the Great Seal to prevent it. He off the pretended Child and Mother with pos'd Witnesses, that were most capable covering the Cheat upon Examination, made the Enquiry impracticable; for none Depositions were any thing to the purpose of the Midwife, and she was carry'd to

2. Roger, The Proof lay upon King asserted him to be his Son, according to Rules of Law, Reason and Logick; so should have submitted the Enquiry to Pa and had his Witnesses in readiness. Th of the Roman Imperial Laws in this Case trimonium & Filiationem qui asserunt debe re per testes idoneos omni exceptione Majo that assert a Marriage or the Birth of are oblig'd to prove it by unexceptionable ses. Et qualem quis se facit pro fundam tentionis suæ, talem se debet) probare, & petit hæreditatem tanquam Filius debet pro liationem; i. e. The foundation of every must be prov'd by the Demander, and he th Claim to an Inheritance as a Son, must pro Sonship. From which 'tis plain, Roger, Proof lay upon King James, while alive, now upon his pretended Son, admitting the no other Cause of his Exclusion. 'Tis a Rule in our Law, that if any Man Claim, and don't prosecute that Claim in ny Terms, he is nonsuited. The Prince of refer'd King James's Assertion and Cl Free Parliament, but he never would lay one, therefore his Claim is lost.

3. Roger, The Prince of Orange was lig'd either by our Laws, or by natural prove the Pretender an Impostor: his Princess having been the acknowledg'd parent of the Crown, it lay upon K. prove, by unexceptionable Witnesses, the macy of the Prince whom he set up in her according to the Practice of all Nations, Pretensions to Crowns are controverted. Henry IV. of France, tho a Protestant, Succession was disputed, sent the Grounds Claim to the Pope himself, and to all the Princes and States of Europe, as well as testants, to prove that he was the right and Heir to that Crown, in opposition to whom the Leaguers had set up in his Whereas King James offer'd no satisfaction for the Legitimacy of the Pretender and none at all to the Representatives of tion, who were most concern'd in it.

Venice, March 21.

AST Week we receiv'd Letters from Conſtantinople, dated the 14th of January, which confirm the former Advices relating to the great Preparations of the Turks and Land, and the Reſolution by the Porte not to hearken to any ſions from the Muſcovites. They from Breſcia, that the Imperial Officers Milaneze have given out Orders for roops that are deſign'd for Barcelona, which amount to about 2500 Men, to towards Genoa; though there be no of the Arrival of the Ships of War d for their Convoy; 'tis even advis'd, miral Norris cannot ſail from Port till by the Fleet from Lisbon he re- tores for refitting his Ships. The g of the Brenta, and the opening of t Canal from its Mouth to this City our Lagune, are finiſh'd; and now ay paſs from hence to Padua, and laces. The Imperial Commiſſioners t yet put the Duke of Modena into on of Mirandola; and that Affair is pon to be put back very much, by e which the Diet of Ratisbon have ſuſpending the Execution of the Con- of that Territory in Prejudice of e of Mirandola, and declaring that n be offer'd in his Defence ought to before any Alienation of his Eſtate contrary to all requiſite Forms.

March 14. The 10th of this Month regation of the Immunity was held at ce of Cardinal Mareſcotti, in which Propoſitions made by the Count de aris, for terminating the Differences e Duke of Savoy, were reexamined jected. Whereupon that Miniſter, no further Hope of bringing his Ne- on to a happy Iſſue, is ſet out from o return to Turin, after having made ſt in the nature of a Manifeſto, tend- juſtify the Pretentions and Conduct Duke his Maſter.

urg, March 26. A Courier who is ar- rom Ruſſia at Dreſden, has put the of Saxony into a great Conſternation, brought Advice that the Palatine of with the Son of the Cham of Tartary rred the Ukraine; that the King of n is to follow with his Troops, and y of Turks and Tartars; and will ad- with all Expedition towards the Viſtu- are is taking to ſecure the Frontiers of by a Body of 14000 Men, of whom eateſt Part are Militia who are daily ed. Letters from Dantzick import, that the Palatinates of Pruſſia had not yet been able to agree upon Quarters and Contributions with the Saxons and Muſcovites: But they hope to be quickly relieved, by the Diverſion which the King of Sweden and the Turks will make, which will oblige the Czar to cauſe almoſt all his Troops to march that Way; ſo that no more than 12000 Muſcovites will be left in Poland. The 7 or 8000 Muſcovites which were promiſed to the King of Denmark, were ordered to march towards Volhinia: Moſt of thoſe which were in Livonia, Samogitia, and Lithuania, are march'd towards the Boryſthenes; the Artillery which was at Riga, is following them: 'Tis alſo rumour'd, that only 12000 Muſcovites are to be left in Livonia, and that the Governour of Riga has Orders, in caſe the Swedes approach that Place, to blow up the Fortifications and to retire with his Garriſon. 'Tis advis'd from Wilna, that King Auguſtus had ſent Order to the Nobility of Lithuania to mount on Horſeback, and to oblige their Tenants to take Arms; but 'twas believ'd that Order would be ill executed. They write from Warſaw, that a Letter had been handed about there, written by the Palatine of Kiow to a Senator who is a Friend of his, in order to expoſe the Calumnies ſpread abroad by his Enemies to render him odious to his Native Country, charging him with having engag'd to put Kaminiec into the Hands of the Turks, with all Podolia, and to render the Kingdom of Poland Tributary to the Grand Signior. The Letter ſhews that all thoſe Allegations are falſe, and maliciouſly invented to blacken his Reputation; and that the Turks have enter'd into the War, only to aſſiſt the King of Sweden, as they had promiſed him, and to revenge the Infractions of the Treaty of Carlowitz by the Muſcovites. Agreeably hereto, all the Letters from the Frontier which confirm that the Palatine of Kiow has enter'd the Ukraine, tell us he declares whereever he comes that he will offer Injury to none but the Muſcovites, from whom he hopes to deliver the Country; that no Hurt ſhall be done to the Poles, and that therefore they may keep quiet. Theſe Letters add, that notwithſtanding the Muſcovites had pretended they had Forces ſufficient to oppoſe the Paſſage of the Neiſter by their Enemies, yet the Palatine of Kiow came over it without Obſtacle, as alſo the River Bog; that he is arriv'd at Niemirow, a Town belonging to him; that he will advance towards Szechrin and Bialacerkieu, with Deſign to influence the Coſſacks to Revolt, by the Means of ſeveral Officers of the late General Mazeppa whom he has brought with him: Laſtly, that he will ſoon be followed by the King of Sweden, who will publiſh Manifeſtoes to inform the Poles of his good Intentions towards them.
